THE SAD PASSING OF PATRICIA O'DONOGHUE

It is with great sadness that we relate the untimely passing of our ex colleague and beloved friend Patricia O'Donoghue (nee O'Reilly). Patricia passed away recently following a short illness, bravely fought. Patricia is greatly missed by her husband Donal and four beautiful daughters Siobhan, Deirdre, Fiona and Roisin.

Patricia taught at St. Cronan's Junior School for 17 years. She then went on to teach at Belgrove Junior Girl's School Clontarf for 18 years, becoming a principal there after a few years.

Patricia was the kind of teacher every parent would wish to have for their child. She had a lovely rapport with the children, being warm, encouraging and fun. She was very ambitious for the children, working conscientiously to help them excel and become "the very best that they could be". Patricia prepared the children for their First Confession and Holy Communion. She taught them to be kind and good to each other through her example and words.

Patricia was much loved and respected by all our school community. She was wise, generous and such fun to be around. She will be greatly missed.

We extend our sympathies to Patricia's family, friends and relations and to the staff, pupils and community of Belgrove School, Clontarf.

Women, Men, and Unborn Children

The relationship between a mother and her unborn child is not simply physical and biological, but emotional and even spiritual. To hurt her child goes against everything that a mother is. We are aware that there are many factors which may influence the decision to have an abortion and that, in many cases, it is a painful and even shattering decision. The emotional and spiritual wound may take a long time to heal.

There is a regrettable tendency to associate abortion exclusively with women who have had abortions. The clear teaching of the Church is that those who promote, organise and carry out abortions are just as responsible and, in some cases, more responsible. Often the destructive act carried out against the unborn child is compounded by the failure of key individuals or institutions to support the mother in recognising and choosing other possibilities.

We understand that some people, including men themselves, feel that men have no contribution to make to this debate. We are aware that this question has already been raised in discussions at the Assembly. With due respect and sensitivity to the unique role of the mother who carries the unborn child in her womb, we would want to say very clearly that fathers are also parents, with all the responsibility that this involves. Similarly, when it comes to the right to life, men like women have a responsibility, which cannot be abdicated, to defend unborn children who have no other voice.

Pope Francis, in line with comments made by Pope Saint John Paul II, recently wrote:

"I wish to restate as firmly as I can that abortion is a grave sin, since it puts an end to an innocent life. In the same way, however, I can and must state that there is no sin that God's mercy cannot reach and wipe away when it finds a repentant heart seeking to be reconciled with the Father."

As a Church, for over forty years, through Cura's professional counselling service, we have been supporting expectant mothers and fathers who find themselves facing a crisis pregnancy. Our hope is for a Church and a society which, while rejecting abortion, reaches out to women who have had an abortion, with a listening ear and an understanding heart. Most of all, we believe that the common good is best served by a Church and a civil society which, while rejecting abortion, continues to offer women real alternatives and real support.
